

Reference Peter Meier,

I am in my second entrepreneurship. While the first was unsuccessful, the current one is on a great track. I see 3 key differences for this success: First, I am in a better market. Second, in the meantime I obtained a Data Science graduation from the MIT. Third, the effect of the coaching with Peter Meier cannot be overestimated.

As a Start-up founder, my person is both the strength and the weakness of the small company. Peter's coaching, which I take for almost 2 years, helps me to overcome my own weaknesses and barriers so I can unfold my full potential. Through his well-balanced technique between listening, questioning, and intervening, Peter is able to guide me to my own insights. This is a very effective technique and helped me to be a much more efficient, effective and, most importantly, satisfied professional. I highly recommend his coaching.

About You: This question is required. *

Who are you as a person and as a professional coach?

What are you enthusiastic about? What does coaching mean to you? Why are you coaching?

My vision is a world that is aware. That is why I am supporting my clients in taking informed decisions.

I am a Professional Certified Coach (PCC) with the International Coaching Federation (ICF) with an academic background in psychology and business administration and a professional background in human resources, consulting and entrepreneurship.

The focus of my work is the human being in a professional context. This includes all kinds of work related topics.

I am convinced that everybody that has a question also has the answer to it. But, very often does not yet know how to access it. That is where the art of coaching comes into play.

Talk about your coach training. What are the industries you worked with? What are the topics you can help your Coachee with?

I started my professional journey as a coach in 2016 with a training in the USA.

Ever since then I have attended a wide range of additional coach trainings qualifying me as an individual as well as a team coach.

Today I look back to 750+ hours of coaching with clients from all kinds of industries including NGOs. I work with all hierarchical levels of employees from young talents to c-level executives including entrepreneurs and self-employed professionals.

Topics that my clients want to deal with are mostly work and career related and include: Work-life balance, leadership, taking the next career step, professional re-orientation, entrepreneurship, and conflict resolution

Hi, my name is Peter.

My vision is a world that is aware. As a professional certified coach, I am working towards that dream by supporting my clients in taking informed decisions.

Today, if you asked me about my coaching niche, I must answer that I don't have an exact defined niche. I see myself as a coach that works with the human being in a professional context. This obviously involves the professional environment but at the center of the attention of my coaching sessions is always the client as a human being. My academic background is in psychology and business administration, this has taken me through various professional positions in human resources, consulting and entrepreneurship.

One of my strengths as a digital coach is my global focus. As a Swiss I am working from Brazil with clients from all over the world who I attend in English, German, and Portuguese.
